

KNIT KNACKS

Here's a yarn for you—knitting has found a new renaissance all over the world! Forget the image of grannies purling their way through frumpy sweaters, these days you're likely to get everyone from high-powered execs to Jen Aniston de-stressing with a ball of wool and a pair of needles.

There's even been young knitting 'anarchists' who've taken to the streets with their amazing 'knit-bombs'—knitting over unlikely objects such as cars, trees and even socks for bronze statues!

MC have become big fans of one of UK's most prolific knitters, Kate Jenkins, whose quirky, adorable creations have been displayed (and sold out) at art galleries. Time for us to get ourselves in stitches, perhaps?
